WASHINGTON May 10—The Re publican split in the senate over farm r lief having reached the recrimina tion stage w dened and grew bitter o day

Senator Simson Ore s a tempt to r buke Re s fellow Republicans who lined fr nden Hoover and v ted with the Democra s f r the debenture plan had a boomerang effect The Ohio an is the party whip and he vol untarily assumed the task of disciplin ing his recalcitrant colleagues among them Senator Borah Republican of Idaho by publicly branding them as [illegible] ecide Republicans

Borah said Fes was the one Re publican who more than all others [illegible] rounded President Hoover to call the extra ses ion of congre s to deal with farm relief And at the first op portunity he added Borah deserted the White House to vote for the deben ure plan to which Mr Hoover is so staunchly opposed

Fires Party Discord

The pedagogical reprimand was a spark which fired the kindling of party discord and Fess was literally deluged today with stinging rejoinder

Borah said he sincerely supported Hoover in the last campaign but in v ding he didn't consider that he was bound for ver enyone I from s ing public men as he pleased

There are two classes of politicians one is the individual who bar ters his vote for gain and for money

There is the other who holds is convictions his conscience at the bequest of some particular individual some one whom he looks upon as a political superior with a possible power to advance his interests

The contempt which self respecting people measure out to both is a mere matter of degree

Defending his vote for the debenture Borah asserted there was no more subsidy or bounty contained in it than there is in the tariff law which pro tects industries

CHARLESTON W Va, May 10—Clyde Beale, convict extraordinary at the Moundsville, W Va state penitentiary who was sentenced to hang by the neck until dead' at that institution tomorrow, had been saved from the gallows today by an order of Gov William G Conley which commuted the death sentence to life imprisonment

While under sentence to die Beale often carried the keys to the Wyoming county jail pending the appeal of the death verdict When the appeal was denied he traveled to Williamson an attended He was allowed to live in a hotel there while he awaited the court's action

The mountaineer lumberjack was convicted of the murder of Mrs Bessie Perdue at Vulcan, in 'bloody' Mingo county, the scene of many other shooting scrapes

Jury Petitions Governor

Governor Conley's action was in part the result of petitions he received from the 12 members of the jury which found Beale guilty of murder in the first degree without a recommendation for mercy

The jurors petition for a pardon was called unusual as it stated that sentiment was strong against Beale at the time of the alleged murder

Judge H D Bailey, when the jury returned the verdict refused to sentence Beale A supreme court order commanded him to comply with the statutes but he then evaded the issue by failing to open a term of court Another circuit judge Herndon of Welch W Va sitting for Bailey, likewise evaded the sentencing of Beale and finally Judge Maxwell of Beckley, passed the death order

Beale Was Trusty

For more than a year Beale was a trusty in the Wyoming county jail and he often carried the keys to the bastile

Beale while awaiting death at the Moundsville prison was not confined to murderers row with the other condemned men He was in the most unusual in the state's criminal history

BRITISH OPEN HONORS GO TO U. S. GOLFERS

Americans Finish One, Two, Three, Victory Margin Great

SETS NEW RECORD

Farrell and Diegel Follow Sir Walter to Finish

MUIRFIELD Scotland May 10—Walter Hagen with American eagle crowned him self with the immortals of Scotland's links here today by winning his fourth championship in the British open golf classic with a medal score of 292 for the 72 hole distance

It was the fourth triumph for the sleek smiling American and curiously enough his grand total was the same by which he prevaricated his field in the event last year His other victories came in 1924 and 1924 giving him a run of success through the last seven years the finds a comparison only in the glamorous careers of Harry Vardon and James Braid The latter won the title five times back in the early years of the present century Vardon has had 6 in his possession no less than six times through a notable life time of competition

British Take Fourth

Both were starters in the present tournament but the years had bowed them down and only their strokes were greater in number

Johnny Farrell, American open champion and Leo Diegel another American who led the field at the end of the second round followed Hagen to the line Farrell having a 77 for a total of 298 and Diegel finishing with 299, with a 77 on the last round Thus it was a one-two-three triumph for America which was not unprecedented and a six stroke victory for Hagen the greatest margin of the modern era if not of all time

For 1920 when the great Jones won his first time Watrous Hagen and Von Elm finished in his wake, to make it a four way victory for American golf Otherwise today's sweep of the field left American in possession of every honor known to this championship The best England could do with its main power was to place Abe Mitchell and Percy Allis next in line at 300 each

Sets Course Record

Hagen's victory with successive rounds of 77 67 a course record 75 and 75 was distinctly a personal triumph for the man whose will to win is never got tied by conditions In second place this morning two

Panorama Film, Doubling Scene Range of Camera, May Revolutionize Industry

BY DAVID P. SENTNER

(Copyright, 1929, by I. N. S.)

NEW YORK, May 10—Rumblings of a new moving picture device which may prove as revolutionary in its effects upon the industry as the "talkies," were recorded today by members departing from the convention of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers.

The "panorama film" has been perfected and a certain leading motion picture production company plans to introduce it publicly within a short time, International News Service was informed exclusively from several unrelated sources.

The "panorama film" will more than double the motion range recorded by the field camera with which the visual effect when projected on the screen

'It will mean that a moving picture patron in the back row of an average theater will see the scene on the screen as if he were sitting in the front row," it was said.

'And it was emphasized that the resultant projected image will not be as if the picture were magnified but will be a natural reproduction as the eye would see the scene. In "magnified"

Tad Taught America New Language How to Laugh

[illegible] SENTER
[illegible] Staff Writer

[illegible]— Tad [illegible] cartoons

who recently passed away in his sleep leaves behind him even more than a memorable personality.

Tad leaves his influence upon the language of a nation.

His slang welded a nation together—it taught them a common tongue—it stimulated their communication with each other—it did more to Americanize the immigrant than schools—and it taught a nation to laugh at itself and with itself.

If you do not find Tad's brain-word in the dictionary or see it, fear you may be surprised that they will be there in all their vividness tomorrow.

Tad turned in on the great American middleclass and as he might he came up with a rabbit in each hand. He pictured their joys and sorrows in his graphic cartooning. And he punctuated his observations with the immortal phrase which swept through hamlet and city and store in the national vocabulary.

You will hear Depression spoken today and tomorrow in the daily lives of the American masses—in office, factory, parlor and kitchen at all times—in self-pity—and if Congress will permit me to mention it, in historical tea rooms—in splash [illegible]

"TAD" undoubtedly was more than a cartoonist and a great humorist. He was a historian working with pencil and phrase using the middle life panorama of life and idiom to its expressiveness with his own word contribution.

The exact social effect of such a genius cannot be gauged for perhaps a century or so. But I believe that the world and every citizen of it—Tad have done much to make the average American citizen middleclass conscious and proud of it.

TO show how Tad worked: A friend once told him of the fruit dealer of foreign extraction who replied to a question with:

"No, we have no bananas."

Tad was convulsed. "What a line," he said.

He went out to check up for himself and sure enough the fruit dealer was there with the line.

So Tad ran it in his comic strip. And a quick-eared popular song writer lifted it into a song which worried sensitive people in many countries for many years.

Who'll take care of the caretakers daughter when the caretakers taking care also was put into a song.

Beginning, in the cartoons of Tad the country soon began calling feet and shoes dogs, an overcoat a benny, a hat a skimmer, using the term "cheaters" for eyeglasses and borrowing other slang from Dorgan's Indoor Sports, Judge Rumor, Difficults and others of his cartoons.

SOME of his best known slang creations follow: nobody home; he's a hard boiled egg; applesauce for cream on local drug store cowboy; 23 skidoo; solid with; hunky dory; never say die; not a bull; it's the cat's meow; you tell 'em; the first 100 years are the hardest; mad [illegible]

NO INFORMATION FROM ANNE, LINDY

He's Daily Visitor to Morrow Home but Lips Are Sealed as Usual

ENGLEWOOD N J May 10—Miss Anne Morrow and her fiance Col Charles A Lindbergh were quite inaccessible today as they have been ever since the young bride to be returned from Mexico Consequently efforts to confirm a report that they are to be married in North Haven Maine the summer home of Ambassador Morrow failed

A published report that the Morrow family would leave Englewood for Maine within a fortnight was said to be unauthorized

Although the ban on the press in the vicinity of the Morrow home has been modified a bit newspapermen and women are able to obtain little information concerning Lindy and his sweetheart The chief of police has informed reporters that the Morrow family will not object to their remaining in the vicinity provided they do not congregate around the entrance to the estate Reporters and photographers are now allowed to park their cars about fifty feet outside the estate gate They can observe from this point those who arrive and depart from the Morrow home

Miss Morrow occasionally leaves her home in the family car Wednesday the petite Anne accompanied by her sister Elizabeth went to New York City on a shopping expedition She was encountered window shopping by a photographer but anyhow declined to pose saying there was an understanding on that matter

Lindbergh is a daily visitor at the Morrow home However he is as incommunicative regarding his love affairs as ever

MAY REOPEN PROBE OF YOUTH'S DEATH

Washington County Officials Ask Cooper To Act in Jett Case

COLUMBUS May 10—Prospects of the reopening of the probe into the death of Hamilton Jett 17 Marietta youth who died in the Ohio Industrial school at Lancaster from gunshot wounds which he or they charged resulted from the hazing of the boy loomed here today

Rep O S Creighton Washington county state legislator Prosecuting Attorney Fred C Myers and Roy Sprague secretary of the Washington county Republican executive committee all of Marietta called on Gov Myers Y Cooper at noon yesterday afternoon and urged the chief executive to order disciplinary action in the Jett case

Public sentiment at Marietta is insistent that proper action be taken the Marietta visitors declare

Referred to Griswold

A member of the delegation immediately after the conference told an International News Service reporter that Governor Cooper admitted that it looks like some one has run down on the job

Governor Cooper pointed out that Welfare Director Hall H Griswold has jurisdiction over the boys correctional institution at Lancaster and referred the Washington county men to that individual

Because of the lateness of the hour the Marietta men returned to their home city saying that they would come back to Columbus later to confer with Griswold

Jett died of pneumonia in the Lancaster school last December His mother charged that the illness was brought on by the hazing of the boy A resultant investigation was limited by the transfer of the disciplinarian of the school to another position No blame was placed on the school or any of its officers however After the first probe which lasted weeks the death had been regarded as a closed incident

Young men may not kiss their girls on the nonpublic beach of Rhode Island unless they are officers sailors marines firemen or policemen Every night the beach is patrolled by cautious policemen who warn all civilians who find the beach a pleasant haven from the eyes of the world that flirtation is strictly prohibited All those in uniform however are otherwise

The Washington policeman who killed a rum runner who utilized a smoke screen in an attempted getaway has been exonerated by the District of Columbia grand jury Evidently the grand jury took the view that the use of the smoke screen was a confession of guilt which will not have a tendency to make the smoke screen business a great out door sport

Need of a Clean-Up

This city is in need of a thorough cleaning We do not refer to one of the spiritual and moral variety although such a one would no more come amiss here than in any other city but rather to a physical clean up If we have had nothing this spring which was supposed to pass for a substitute for a general housecleaning up of the city it didn't take

It is true that the residence properties of many selected citizens have already been put into tip top shape They are those citizens who can be depended upon to clean up their premises at the first opportunity offered but there is not much to be done to put the streets and alleys and residence and business properties in the shape they should be in much remains to be accomplished before they can be said to be in the shape they usually are in at this season of the year I will not take an extended survey of situation if the object to establish the truth of this There is the customary array of ash piles tin cans and other rubbish which is a disfigurement all the breaking of the spring

It is true that we have had an exceptionally wet spring The weatherman may tell us that we have had no more than one normal rainfall We do not know as to that but it is true what rainfall we have had has been so spread out that it has discouraged the average citizen and he has put his property in the shape in which it must be found at this time in May

Let's get together and make Marion the attractive community it naturally is not only to ourselves but also to the many who may come to our community whether as visitors for a season or mere travelers passing through And while we are cleaning up perhaps the application of a little fire hering paint here and there will not be amiss Fire one of the agencies which when applied with haste work for beautification

His Position Not a Happy One.

Congressman Michaelson of Illinois has been exonerated of the charge of violating the liquor laws However within twelve hours of his acquittal by a federal jury at Key West his brother in law Walter Gramm of Chicago had been arraigned on a charge of unlawfully concealing and facilitating the transportation and concealment of twelve bottles of liquor and waived examination

From the testimony of the various witnesses it appears that a party of six made up of Congressman and Mrs Michaelson Mr and Mrs Walter Gramm and Mr and Mrs Lester Egan all of Chicago left New York for a trip to Panama with two trunks to each couple While on the trip either in Panama or Havana they purchased three extra trunks one for each couple Gramm testified that he had nothing to do with the purchase On the way home there were several conferences regarding the congressman's right of freedom of the port It was decided to enter the country at Key West and Mr Michaelson agreed to take care of two trunks for Gramm and one for Egan Arriving at Key West six of the trunks were passed but the other three were inspected However nothing dutiable was found in the three All went well until Jacksonville was reached At that point one of the extra trunks sprung a leak Some one whose identity has yet unknown had loaded a dozen bottles of liquor into it and the charge was made that there was a ten gallon keg of rum in another

Congressman Michaelson testified and he was uncontradicted that he had nothing to do with the packing of any of the trunks and was unaware that there was any liquor in any of them The congressman's brother in law having admitted that the two trunks held up by the authorities belonged to him—and that is about all he did admit exercising his constitutional right and refusing to answer any question tending to show that he had knowledge of the presence of liquor in the trunks—there was nothing for the jury to do but acquit the congressman and as stated he was wholly exonerated of the liquor charges

But even so the congressman's position is not a happy one By his own statement he did not know the contents of the six trunks which he brought in under freedom of the port three of which did not belong to him yet he was willing to take advantage of the courtesy shown him as a congressman and facilitate their passage through the customs house While there is no such penalty attached to this course on his part as there is for the bringing in transporting and possession of liquor it brings out the utter disregard he had for the honor upon which he was placed by accepting the courtesies of the port and is a telling illustration of the imposition worked upon the government by members of congress and many others in the service of the government As a matter of fact the abuses of freedom of the port have been so many that it is fast becoming a scandal There is utterly no more reason why a member of congress or other government official should be given the freedom of the port than any other American The practice is undemocratic and un American and it should be abandoned together with certain other abuses practiced by those in official life especially members of the two houses of congress

Mr Coolidge is reported to have received $50 for attending his first meeting as a director of the New York life insurance company with which he has become connected but what of that? Fifty dollars must look like chicken feed when some literary efforts are bringing six dollars a word

A portion of the German press is censuring the Berlin police for using their pistols on the May day rioters evidently holding the view that they should have tried out moral suasion on the mobs There are some diseases which demand forceful treatment

The Paris cable telling how it took twenty fire companies an hour to quench the flames which were sweeping the roof of the French capital famous opera house is hardly fair to the French firemen as it took the most of the companies a quarter of an hour to reach the scene after the alarm was turned in which naturally should be counted out

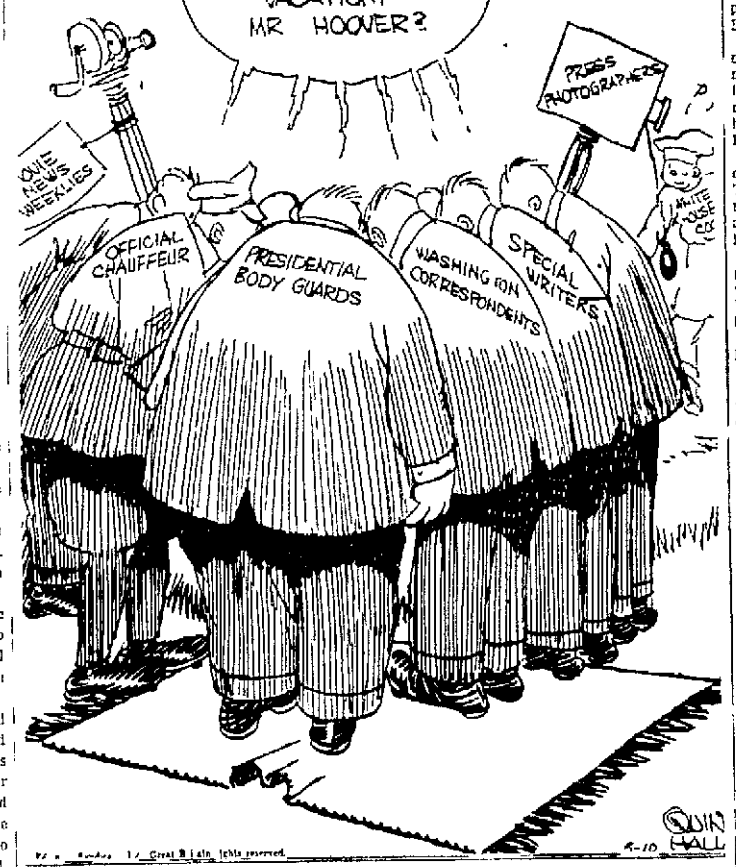
THE DAILY HUDDLE.



Serious Results Rare in Croup.

BY ROYAL S COPELAND M D

When I was a young doctor business was pretty poor unless we had a few cases of croup every week Fortunately for the youngsters this ailment is not nearly so common as it used to be In the old days we heard a lot about membraneous croup As the name indicates a membrane formed in the throat As a matter of fact that condition was really diphtheria The term membranous croup was merely another name for dread diphtheria

If the scientists had never done anything else for us than to find a means of protecting little children against diphtheria their efforts would be worth a thousand times more than they cost There are communities of considerable size in this country where there was not a single death from diphtheria last year In the death records of a quarter of a century ago diphtheria led the procession

It is not often that we find the well nourished baby child at a disadvantage In this type of child however croup is more serious and more common

If it had not been for the fact that membraneous croup was really diphtheria and on this account responsible for so many deaths croup would not deserve the very bad name it holds As a matter of fact while the symptoms of true croup are distressing and seem to indicate great suffering on the part of the victim serious results are rarely met The snoring whistling breathing and the harsh metallic cough seem very terrible I am not surprised that many a mother has been frightened almost into hysteria by symptoms in her child which really proved of little consequence

Did you ever notice how black everything seems in the middle of the night? If you awaken then and think about your business affairs you are sure you are going to the poorhouse! It is just the same way with disease If an attack of some kind of sickness comes on suddenly in the middle of the night it frightens everybody in the household Croup is particularly disturbing because of the loud barking cough and the hard whistling breathing The sounds penetrate every part of the house

The household remedy for croup is an emetic in the form of syrup of ipecac or a mixture of syrup of ipecac and syrup of squills it is a favorite remedy A tablespoonful of mustard flour in a pint of water will have the same effect

If the breathing is very difficult the child may be placed in a tub of warm water and cold compresses applied to the throat at the same time Needless to say you will have sent for the doctor as soon as the attack was discovered

It is not unusual for croup to be met with in a child having adenoids or enlarged tonsils The treatment in such cases is crowded with this discussion I need not tell you that such a child must have medical attention

Editorial Opinion.

A FUTILE GAME

It is natural that the insurgent or Progressive senators among whom Mr Borah has resumed his natural place should follow their habitual tactics of manifestation and obstruction One could have hoped however that the majority of Democratic senators would remember the smart of their oft burnt fingers Instead they seem content to be pulled again The sop to cotton was perhaps hardly necessary to win most of the southern senators nor does it furnish a sufficient reason for an unreasonable course It is a fair enough argument to compare an agricultural bounty with an industrial bounty and if the debenture scheme be beaten it is proposed to resuscitate it as an amendment to the tariff bill

But what is the object of delay and quibbling which can accomplish nothing in the end unless the debenturists are ready to go to the length of preventing any plan of farm relief It is notorious that the president and the house will not accept the export debenture project Be it good or not so good the part of practical statesmen is to take what they can get Nearly four fifths of the Democrats of the house voted for the administration bill Three were 1 1 Democratic ayes and only thirty two Democratic noes Are the debenture Democrats in the senate obviously not trying to do anything possible for the farmers doing anything for their party by running after this apple of discord so perfidiously thrown among them by the Progressives?

Under all this virtuous pretended zeal to help the farmers lies something far more precious to the august ones than the farmers and their woes and hopes The house is showing an unruly corporate sense It attends to its business More and more it commends itself to the country long disgusted with the spouting dawdling and pompous megalomania of the senate It has distinctly challenged the senate The greater number of house Democrats joined with all the Republicans but two in supporting the administration in preferring the substance to the shadow Can this indignity be borne by the augustan majesty of the senate

Must not the house as well as the president be disciplined So the Progressives and most of the Democratic conscript fathers are again treating the country to a conscript fathers day So easy it is for mementoes bodies to go down hill once they are started —New York Times Democratic

THE RED FROLIC

Berlin feels who made May day a four day riot behind street barricades have appealed to the conscience compassion and justice of the world against the police who shot a score of them The armed communists knew according to their leaders that the time was not ripe for a complete overthrow of government This was merely a sortie to test strength indulge in casual destruction of life and property and make some work for the undertakers among the capitalists and the bourgeoisie It was therefore inhuman to offer any resistance to the May day mobs The police should have danced around the maypole and have sung spring songs

The comrades have prescriptive rights with the machine gun and bomb A massacre of intellectuals statesmen and unconverted workers and peasants as in Russia is an application of economic truth Resistance if unsuccessful is counter revolution punishable by death If successful it is inhuman and brutality

Storm Breeding.

BY GARRETT P SERVISS

I would be pleased to have you give some information regarding a moospheric disturbance as recorded by the barometer should think that a moisture laden atmosphere would be heavy and produce a low barometer reading than a dry atmosphere but we seem always to get our storms with a low barometer This condition does not seem quite right to me so I am asking your help —C W M, Brooklandville Md

Aqueous vapor—water in the form of vapor—is lighter than air so that the pressure of about three to five Therefore where rain is formed by evaporation from the water surface—the sea is the great source of supply for the atmosphere—the vapor rises through the atmosphere carrying a certain amount along in its rise so that ascending currents are produced in the atmosphere as the aqueous vapor is formed

In consequence there is a general area of low barometric pressure over the oceans or seas where evaporation is relatively large and continuous Habitually the moist air ascending from the evaporating surface spread laterally in upper air so that the vapor is carried off and diffused as fast as it is formed If it were not so of course there would be an increase of weight through the addition of the vapor to the air But this is not because of the ascent and the consequent confusion above a defect of pressure is maintained below

Also an ascending air current carries into a region where there is more room for it expands and the effect of expansion is to cool the air together with the contained vapor However the descending air is so loaded with vapor as to be in a saturated state before the vapor will be condensed and the latent condensation releases latent heat which helps to counteract the cooling caused by expansion so that saturated air rises faster than unsaturated or dry air

The reason then, why we generally have rain with low barometer is that the rain is produced by condensation of aqueous vapor that has risen to a height of a mile or more in the air where it has been cooled by expansion and the latent heat released by this cooling condenses the vapor and helps to maintain the ascent of the air above which still causes a relatively low state of the barometer below

In general storms called cyclones move across this country usually in a general northeasterly direction and which may be 1 000 or 2 000 miles in diameter the whole area is associated with the region of low barometer which lies near the center of the cyclonic area There the ascent of the air is the most pronounced with a consequent minimum of barometric pressure In the lower part of the atmosphere through which the rain falls As the cyclone or low pressure area with its inblowing winds and rain or snow passes the barometer rises and the weather clears for now there is no more rising aqueous vapor to produce a defect of pressure near the ground level both by reducing an ascent of the air and by the effect of its condensation into cloud and rain which warms the air by releasing latent heat But this so called latent heat locked up in the air keeps the moisture in the invisible form of light vapor If it escapes the vapor condenses The winds of a storm are an accident of the contacts and changes of barometer pressure — Copyright, 1929, International Feature Service Inc

There are some Americans knowing little about America who think that most of the learning and scholarship of the world is confined to Europe and the British Isles They would be astonished to discover there are 1 000 000 American volumes in the British Library of Political and Economic Science in London And these books are being added at the rate of 6 000 a year In the great Bodleian library in Oxford one of the most remarkable collections of books and manuscripts in the world there are so many American books that storage space is a difficult problem

In the old days books were chained to the library shelves As far as thousands are concerned they might as well be now I'm glad books are no longer chained up but I'm glad you can read The Magic Island by Seabrook Be glad you can read it if you didn't no so several years ago The Man in the Making by Robinson

A FLOCK OF GOOD HENS MAKES A DIFFERENCE

Many people have learned that the farmer with a good producing flock of hens always seems to have some ready money on hand This is also lately the fact and Mr A L Everett of the Erlay Poultry Farms tells us that indications point toward a more general acceptance of this fact Mr Everett is finding that the people within driving distance of the Erlay Poultry Farms are adding continually to the number of chicks they are buying particularly those of higher quality stock Three grades of chicks are offered the public by the Erlay Poultry Farms but by far the most popular are the chicks from high producing strains

Of additional interest to those within driving distance of the hatchery is the fact that through the custom hatching plan it is possible for a customer to bring his own eggs to the hatchery and for a reasonable amount have them hatched out For particulars on this you should call the Erlay Poultry Farms Delaware or 28 W Duncan Street Columbus Ohio by phone or drop them a line —Adv

Cowboys and Indians Pursue Buffalo Through Kenton Streets

KENTON May 10—A number of persons were startled late yesterday afternoon when a buffalo and a few Indians and cowboys were seen dashing down the streets of the city in pursuit of a buffalo which had escaped from the herd and leaped through a fence on the outskirts of the city where a number of them had been kept Squaws and Indian papooses were also in the pursuit

Residents were preparing to give chase to the speeding animal when it turned down the streets of the city and boys became attracted by the commotion hurried back to cover at sight of the buffalo

The chase continued for an hour and a half—and for many miles—before the animal winded and tired out gave up The one big thrill of the chase came when the animal charged down the Big Four railroad tracks in the face of an oncoming locomotive stopping to one side of the rails when the engine was within a few feet

the purchase of 130 acres in three southern states. Two trips were made into the South Lavarre told the commission and a number of cities were listed in addition to these in which negotiations were brought.

Visited Southern Cities

The testimony developed that Hall and Lavarre beginning in November 1925 were advanced $1,000 a month each as drawing account and that in addition the International Paper Co. advanced moneys totalling $2,000. In the same manner about one-third of the amount put up for the original purchase of the papers.

The former Power Co. lawyer said Hall on an trip to the Virginia paper the mill has to the papers former owners. Speaking of the Chronicle and the witness has never been made aware that its sponsor is the International Paper Co. It was never endorsed by its readers and assumed in blank. It said. It is kept in a bank safety deposit vault at present.

Lavarre said he met Hall when Hall was business manager of the New York Telegram. On his first trip south Lavarre testified he visited a number of cities conferring with publishers in each. He said he spoke to owners of both the Charlotte N. C. papers and saw enough he could not buy either of these. He also visited the owners of the Asheville N. C. papers with the same result.

Was Not Salary

Under questioning by Robert P. Healy commission counsel the witness denied the $12,000 drawing account was salary paid him by the International Paper Co. He termed it part of an open account. He said he had not given the power company any notes for this amount as yet but added that it would at some future time be put in a note.

Lavarre testified he had worked for both the New York World and the New York Times as a circulation promotion man since his graduation at Harvard university. He said he had written a number of articles on economic subjects but not on utilities. He said he knew of no utilities people before he was connected with Hall and began negotiations with the International Paper and Power Co. He said the connection between a paper company and newspaper seemed "logical" and that he had heard of the paper company's financing some publication.

HAGEN WINS BRITISH OPEN CHAMPIONSHIP

strike. Hagen had been presented par for the round when all other competitors were three strokes or more behind the high scores and after the leader had gone.

The wind storm almost to the proportions of a gale had all of the players in a hard battle. It was the worst day I have encountered in golf. It was a day.

In the finish, Hagen four strokes the best of the only three players to break the 300 mark. He had the best aggregate for the 72 holes with 292. It was the 1929 open championship of Great Britain was practically history. Percy Alliss, England who had been in second place took it.

Barrell Fades

Percy Barrell held the rankest of outside chance when he started the final round and even this faded out when he needed 79 strokes to the turn.

And so the British open championship went to American team for the sixth consecutive time. Only in 1924 was Arthur Havers able to break the Yankee monopoly that has existed since 1920 and even then Havers got the score of his life when this same Hagen almost holed his chip on the final green in a dying attempt to get a tie.

The climax to all American day at Muirfield was reached when the final rankings were posted and it was discovered that eight of the first 12 finishers were from the United States. Directly behind Mitchell and Ellis came Bobby Cruikshank at 301. He was followed by Jim Barnes with 302 and Al Watrous and Gene Sarazen with 304 each. Then came Tommy Armour with 307 after which the Yankee pudgury was broken through, finally by Arthur Havers with 308 and Archie Compston with 307.

PANORAMA FILM MAY DOUBLE RANGE SCENE

pictures it was pointed out objects are correspondingly and distinguished.

The eventual results from raising the size of pictures through the "panorama film" were predicted to include the following.

Use of larger screens.

Building and leasing of larger theaters.

Revolutionize projecting equipment.

Change technique of shooting original scenes.

The research departments of various motion picture companies have been working on the idea of enlarging the natural picture for the past 10 years. Experiments along three lines were intensified by the influence of the talkies.

The sound track consisting of an indefinite line of perforated holes on each side of the film has decreased the size of the projected picture. Where on the frame—or picture segment on the film—was rectangular now it is square due to the one tenth of an inch loss on each edge.

The panorama film will have a proportion of eight to 10 instead of three to four as at present one can more explained technically.

He exhibited a sample foot of panorama film to the writer. It was a row of film segment showing Niagara Falls and was approximately two and one half times as wide as ordinary film. While this piece of celluloid means nothing much to a layman the engineer fondled it like radium and commented in it in a whisper.

If I Were A Man | If I Were A Girl

I WOULDN'T be obvious. I'd show a little originality in my conversation and my attitude toward life in general—and girls in particular. I would not consider the weather an interesting topic for discussion or "You're pretty" as a picture a thrilling compliment. If I couldn't think up anything more original I'd keep quiet.

If I wanted to make a girl a gift I wouldn't stick religiously to the old favorites of flowers, candy and books. Flowers, candy and books are quite all right in their way but a girl likes to receive something a little more distinctive once in a while.

If I met an old friend in an unexpected place I wouldn't remark brightly "Well, the world's a small place after all!" If I went to an art exhibit with the Girl Friend, I wouldn't tell her with an air of saying something original "I don't know much about art, but I do know what I like."

The man whose every thought can't be predicted ahead is the one that girls find interesting.

I WOULDN'T be vain. Just because I had the good fortune to be born normal and possess two eyes that didn't cross or squint, and a figure that wasn't conspicuously defective, I wouldn't get all puffed up about it and form a receiving line of one to be handed the plaudits of the world.

I wouldn't expect every man to be dazzled by my beauty and to fall over himself giving me compliments. I'd remember that, after all, I wasn't responsible for the color of my eyes or the shape of my legs and if I wanted to be vain I'd try to cultivate something I could take the credit for. My brains, perhaps. Or an amiable disposition.

A man may fall for a soulful pair of eyes or a beautiful figure but it takes a whole lot more than that to hold him. And what is more he's going to get mighty tired of thinking up compliments all the time to feed the Girl Friend's vanity.

He's looking for a girl who'll bolster up his own vanity once in a while and tell him what a handsome brute he is.

Bedsheets in an old fashioned bed in an old fashioned farmhouse never did get over feeling like ice until June.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

TODAY was Friday, and if anyone thinks that me and Jubilee are sorry that tomorrow will be Saturday they would only need a little more sense to be half witted It got to blush again in the night and when I let Jubilee down by the rope in his festive shirttail fluttered in the cold wind like the last rose of summer I was glad to shut the window and crawl back into bed again for a minute to smooth out the goose pimples Fathers have got it pretty soft They can pick up a book and make out like they are interested in a story till all the mothers in the world have went to bed and warmed all the beds in the world for them and in the morning they can make their little boys get up early and make fires and warm the houses for them

On the way in from the pasture we went around by a different way to see if there was a kid that wanted to fight or anything and we passed a place where the house had burnt down and there was a big lilac bush in the yard all covered with blossoms and because no one was living there we knew they wouldn't want the lilacs so we went in and skinned the bush and they smelt sweet and were covered with dew and we went past Nounisses house and there were Nounisses and Maggie the girl that got fat inside of her, and Feeble and Nounisses looked at the lilacs so sweet that I divided them and gave her half of them and Feeble said 'Give him a smack for them Nounisses' and Nounisses blushed and I got red and Feeble looked disgusted and said

'Gee if I had one in a bunch of lilacs I'd give him a smack that would make his hair curl' and I thought she was bluffing and I would make her ashamed so I gave her all I had left and she handed off and gave me a right hand I smack on the ear that staggered me across the sidewalk and against the fence and the bunch certainly did hooraw me A fella can never guess what Feeble is going to do I wish she had been my sister or something I would have hung one on her chin that would of stretched her neck a yard Nounisses took her handkerchief and wiped my eyes I wasn't crying but there was tears in my eyes She didn't speak to Feeble all the way to school Mush's wife made a fire in the furnace and then the weather turned warm and the school was so hot I would of liked to of taken off my skin and framed myself with it We went in the creek when we went to the pasture and carried our shoes in our hands till I got near home

Meditations of a Married Woman

BY HELEN ROWLAND

Other Women's Husbands

A LITTLE matchmaker is a dangerous thing Matchmakers are always trouble makers

You never can tell by appearances just what sort of mate would make any man or woman happy Half the world simply can't understand how the other half endures its better half

Why for instance do the most interesting and attractive people so often seem to draw such perfect ranks in the marriage lottery Why do the peaches always seem to pick prunes in the garden of love

Why do the most strikingly brilliant men so often choose either brainless little butterflies or little gray moths for wives

Why do the most beautiful and intelligent women so often marry dullwits or playboys or colorless drab little anuxes

I'll tell you why Because that's what they WANT And after all the secret of a happy marriage doesn't consist in getting a perfect husband or an ideal wife but in getting the one that is a perfect fit for your temperament and an ideal match for your tastes Your OWN ideal!

If you are a high strung brilliant person with a lot of temperament and luxurious tastes perhaps a little gray moth who will play the role of background and won't get on your nerves is more soothing and satisfying than another brilliant temperament who might curb your game and demand half your limelight

And perhaps if you're the prima donna type a bit of bric-a-brac or a Pan is Charming with nothing to do all day but hang around and tell you how wonderful you are is more inspiring than a good provider or a human dynamo

Perhaps the mousy little women who are married to bullies and tyrants and the placid women who are married to thunderstorms and grouches are only too delighted to have somebody to infuse a little excitement into their lives Perhaps they won't rather be browbeaten than bored

And doubtless the henpecked husbands and overworked wives enjoy being pecked and overworked—or they wouldn't submit to it

Lots of people would be perfectly satisfied with what they have married if the rest of the world only LET them

If several women could exchange husbands for a day no doubt they would all be around before sundown trying to get back their nice comfortable old shoes again

After all a husband or a wife is a personal matter and the only thing important about a lifetime mate is that he or she happens to be the one you WANT!

It seemed only natural then that the building should do penance for its dissolute past by surrendering a portion of its floor space to the activities of an organization devoted to the promotion of a stern moral code and the suppression of all forms of lawlessness. Law and Order, Inc., was the name of the little group of crusaders that occupied the fifth and attic floors of the erstwhile brick hotel. It had sprung up overnight, as it were, and its organizers were ostensibly an obscure group of earnest men and women who modestly renounced the public limelight of efforts undoubtedly deserved and preferred to do their work quietly and without ostentation. The sudden and unheralded appearance of the little society was nothing unusual in an age when organizations for the suppression of all sorts of iniquity sprout like mushrooms and are sometimes as ephemeral. Asking no favors and minding strictly its own affairs, Law and Order, Inc., appeared to justify its existence by conducting extensive investigations and distributing broadcast a vast amount of leaflets and circulars designed to promote strict enforcement of the law.

The authorship of the society's publications was veiled in anonymity so that the public at large had no inkling of the fact that most of them were the product of the facile pen of one Clifford Wade, a mountainous individual with a pudgy, good-humored face and a triple chin who carried his enormous bulk brough life with a sort of triumphant martyrdom. Wade's antecedents were as obscure as those of the other promoters of Law and Order, Inc., and he had a set of engaging qualities that effectually forestalled any idle inquiries into his past.

To all appearances he was the active head of the organization at any rate he was the only one of the executives whom casual callers were permitted to interview.

Late one afternoon toward the end of March Wade gathered a few typewritten sheets from his desk, stepped out of his plainly furnished office on the fifth floor and climbed heavily to the attic. Puffing hard, he delivered three measured raps on a door.

"Come in," said a deep quick voice.

Wade entered and carefully closed the door behind him. The room having a single dormer window looked as if it had been furnished recently and in haste and its appointments suggested that it served its occupant both as office and living quarters. Except for a bunch of daphne in a plain glass vase on the table it had evidently been arranged with an eye solely to practical things.

The occupant of the room had risen at Wade's entrance. For a moment he stood erect a marked tenseness in his manner a trace of habitual caution in the glance he leveled at the door. The shaded extension lamp on the table illuminated only a narrow space leaving his face in shadow. Seeing the newcomer's squat features flushed from the exertion of climbing a steep stairway, he relaxed and resumed his seat.

"Oh, you, Wade," he said quietly, yet with the strained undertone characteristic of one who is constantly holding himself in leash. "Anything up?"

Wade tossed the typewritten sheets on the table and eased his generous bulk into an armchair. "There was about him a jauntiness and a sleekness of apparel that clashed hideously with his corpulence.

"Lamp that boss," he said with a faint show of pride indicating the manuscript. "Just finished it. I've called it Down With the Bootlegger. Tell me if you don't think it's a knockout."

The other man picked up the sheets and ran a languid eye over the opening paragraphs. Even when at repose as at present his slightest movements indicated an unremitting nervous constraint. Calloused for a time he need should a... The... and self-assertive seemed always on the alert for stray sounds. A deep gray eyes never quite at rest had a hunted look. The darking complexion of drug and was unmistakable evidence of a man who has lived among persons. Above the mould of the hips there was a faint suggestion of the dreamer but here was also a rich... firmness and underlying flintlike quality and the whole denoted a life of boundless energy somewhat tempered by a whimsical strain of humor. As he sat before the heavily shaded lamp with shadows all around his personality gave forth the suggestion of gray elusiveness that was carried out in the flashes of gray eyes, the iron gray at his temples even in the suit of neutral gray he wore.

His eyes as he looked up showed signs of severe strain and sleepless nights but a faint smile played about his lips.

"What puzzles me about you, Wade," he said slowly, "is that you talk like a roughneck but write like a college professor. What's your grievance against the bootlegger?"

"Nothing in particular," said the fat man, "but we've got to keep up the bluff. Makes it flow dry to turn out that kind of stuff, boss. Wish I had some of the bubble water that was guzzled in this joint in the good old days." He licked his lips with a longing expression but in a moment his face sobered. "Fool here, boss. I've come to give you some straight talk."

The other looked a trifle bored.

"It's like this, boss. A month ago when we rolled the old gang together and started getting ready for big time stuff I thought the Gray Phantom was coming back with bells on. It promised to be just like the old days before you fell for the cutie with the heavenly hair and the 7-candle power eyes. Wish I had our luck with the fair ones, boss. I would——"

"Wade!" The interruption came in a low quiet tone but there was suppressed thunder in it. Wade stopped short, gaping indecorously as he saw the effect of his banter. There was a menacing glint in the other's eyes.

"Forgive me, boss," said the fat man awkwardly. "Didn't mean any offense. Shot full tongue of mine is always three jumps ahead of my brain."

"Learn to hold it in check," said the other curtly. Then his face softened a little. "Oh, it's all right. I know your heart is in the right place, you lumbering old hippo. What's worrying you, Wade?"

The fat man regarded him doubtfully out of his small eager eyes, marooned in layers of flesh. He spoke half reproachfully. "Several things are worrying me, boss. One of them is this dull and quiet life. You might give me a chance to work off some of this fat."

"You are doing your share. You got our old crowd together and put new blood into it. To handle such a big organization we had to have a headquarters a safe place where the police wouldn't be likely to disturb us. You found this ideal location and to make us doubly safe and secure against intrusion you drew a cloak of respectability over us. This law and order society was your invention. I didn't get a thought to that side of the matter because I knew I could rely on you. You are doing enough. What are you fretting about?"

Wade contemplated his pudgy and expertly manicured finger tips.

"But it isn't getting us anywhere," he complained. "Always busy, you would act back into the game sooner or later, but I didn't think it would be this way. For three years you and I lay low out at Sea Gillispee. No excitement at all except a few times when your old enemies tried to do you dirt. You spent most of the time in the gardens poking seeds into the ground and mooning about a girl. I didn't like it, boss, but I didn't say much. I felt pretty sure the Gray Phantom would cut loose again before long. Honest to goodness, boss the only thing kept me alive during those three years was the hope that you and I would go back to be men stuff some day. Well the day has come, but it isn't what I expected."

"What's the trouble, Wade?"

The fat man looked wistfully into space. "Don't know as I can make it clear. Remember the old days, when people used to feel as if an earthquake had struck town every time the Gray Phantom's name was mentioned? Those were the days, boss. We did some hard hitting then and we struck out straight from the shoulder. Lots of people are still wondering how we did it. Some of them could never quite decide whether the Gray Phantom was man or devil. I was proud of you in those days, boss."

Wade's chest expanded, his plump face shone.

The other tapped his desk with a pencil. But it was only an emotional eruption. Wade. It gave us a few thrills, but the glamour soon wore off. It was madness—sheer madness. Now it's different. I was dragged back into the old life. I didn't go back voluntarily. It's still madness—but of a different kind. A twitching tremor crossed his pale strained face.

"In the past it was only play. Now it is a matter of life or death. How does it strike you as different?"

Wade thought for a moment. The glow faded from his face. It must be the way we go about it. In the old days we struck out with a wallop knockin' 'em cold. Now we sit down and take our pen in hand. We send out polite letters to mill owners asking them to come across with a million each. If the letters don't work we strike—but the old punch is missing."

Wade sighed and spread out his fat legs encased in meticulously creased trousers. The other his head bent low, looked off into space.

"These letters weren't Lavery's idea," he explained. "I still think he was right. They served a double purpose. Even in the old days that you rhapsodize about, I never felt like striking without giving the victim fair warning. Maybe it was a romantic notion but I stuck to it. The police thought it was bravado, perhaps it was. Now those letters that we mailed out to 10 carefully hand-picked millionaires satisfied the old notion of mine or whatever you choose to call it. Besides the letters gave them a chance to spare themselves a lot of inconvenience. In each case there was a possibility that we wouldn't have to resort to harsh measures."

"Maybe so," said Wade uncertainly. "The Gray Phantom's name at the bottom of a letter is about as strong an argument as I know of. Just the same I didn't quite like the idea. It might have worked but it went against the grain. If I hadn't known you as well as I did I would have *thought that—— He looked uncom*fortably across the desk.

"Out with it, old gas-bag. What would you have thought?"

"That you'd gone dippy," the fat man blurted out, as if anxious to get it off.

The other chuckled faintly. "Well, perhaps you wouldn't have been so very far off. About a month ago just after the blow fell, I don't think I was quite sane.

"When Lavery came to me with his suggestion I thought it was good and still think so. I felt more justified in using force after giving the 10 millionaires a chance to give me voluntarily what I wanted."

Wade scowled a trifle. "A few years ago you wouldn't have needed any justification, boss. That isn't what I object to, though. What I don't like is that you didn't use any force after the letters failed. We had it all *planned to crack the crib at the At*lantic Trust Co. The job was to have come off at midnight last night. The gang was ready to the last man. You had worked out all the details yourself. It was the cleverest plan you ever doped out, how. A stroke of genius, that's what it was. It would have come off like clockwork, too. It would have been a smooth, quiet, painless job and you would have been about a million to the good. Then, when everything was ready, you called the whole thing off, and for no reason at all. It made me mad clear through."

Wade wiped the perspiration from his florid face and glared indignantly at his companion.

LILLIAN turned from the telephone with a smile of unbounded self-confidence and impishness.

"Sure I will, darling," she said. "There's simply no other way, is there? If you and pa ask the grandparents Philip Verrizen to Lido can do [illegible] dear heart accelerator—ignition—and all the rest of it, and we'll start."

I made no real protest for I felt as well as she did the necessity of keeping Philip Verrizen away from the group of people now housed in the farmhouse until we should be able to take them to the New York hotel which was to be our home for the winter. But I was distinctly irritated as I hurried into my motoring coat and hat and brought the car around to the side veranda. Lillian looked me over with a critical eye.

"Not that hat," she said. "Go and get that other one with the touch of scarlet in it and change that old scarf for the bright one you wear with the hat. We're not going to burn the main you know, however much we may desire to do so."

I made a rebellious grimace at her but I climbed down from the car and, all the changes she had commanded, I confess to myself, I gave a last glance at the mirror before returning to the car, that I was quite reconciled to her dictum. The scarlet and scarf had made me look my worst, they brought out every good point I had. Though I decided this morning interview with my employer and had exhibited my distaste for it in donning my most unbecoming hat, yet I was feminine enough to be glad that I was to be forgotten for the ordeal by that most powerful backing, the consciousness of being attractively attired.

"There! Mary Queen of Scots!" Lillian apostrophized me when I returned to the car. "That's better. I'm sure she the dame who believed a coiffure to execution in her best [illegible]."

I don't remember. I said crossly and incautiously for though I was secretly glad of the exchange of hats I was too annoyed at the errand he'd put me to admit my complaisance to Lillian. "What I'm interested in is the program you have laid out for me."

"You mean the one we're laid out on, dear." Lillian retorted with imperturbable good humor but emphasizing the pronoun so that I could not help but catch her meaning. "After all the problem of keeping Philip Verrizen away from the farmhouse so that he could not upset the kindly conspiring for the happiness of our international quartet was more mine than hers. Neither she nor her husband had any personal interest at stake in the matter. There was a purely professional standpoint that of the government service. But Mary was my husband's niece and Noel Verrizen the son of my employer. I flushed as I stepped on the running board and laid a placating hand upon her wrist.

"Sorry, sorry," I said with an embarrassed little laugh. "I'll be a good and obedient child from now on. So you're going to drive?" as she moved over into the driver's seat.

"Yes," she said, stooping to the switch key. "I'll have to drive the boat back anyway—and I might as well get used to it. I'm not the demon driver you are you know. I like a little practice before my color."

She did not speak again until she had negotiated the turn out of the driveway and was well upon the road to Bridgehampton. Then with a straight course in front of her and no car in sight, she began to talk but meticulously followed the first rule of driving—that of keeping her eyes up the road ahead.

"Don't think I'm ignorant of how you feel about this, Sis, mind. Aside from the task of meeting and calming Philip Verrizen—and I'd sooner meet a lioness in my day—I know you must be out of breath and words from explaining this affair to the different people who had to know about it. You've been explaining all over the lot and the end is not yet. But then how can you expect anything else when you have the gift of animal training which has been bestowed on you. Katie, Mrs. Tiger, Philip Verrizen—they're all as wax in your hands."

"You're an incurable optimist," I told her, and there was real worry in my voice for I had known from Philip Verrizen's voice that he was distinctly displeased by the condition of affairs he had found when he returned to the country hotel where he had left Noel.

"I'm not minimizing things," she said. "I appreciate just what you have got on hand. But you're the only one who can do it. Now I'm not going to give you any advice. I can only petition the little Jesus to give you the right approach. You have but one object—to keep him away from the farmhouse and a premature announcement of those engagements. How you can accomplish it, I don't know. It's up to you."

She said nothing more until we reached the last stretch of road leading to the beach.

"There's Phil car now, just ahead of us," she said. "The old boy must have broken all the speed laws."

WITH EDNA S DUTTON

THE Spaniards invasion of the peaceful Peruvian country whose inhabitants knew only truth and plenty basking in the generosity of their Sun God is dramatically told in Thomas Dixon's novel The Sun Virgin which the author has dedicated to Augusto B Leguia president of Peru with admiration

One follows the story as though it were on the silver screen and sometimes our fancies the pictures in colors, gorgeous ones And what possibilities! The journey of the Spaniards across the water the Incas court the gay dancing girls the sunlit valley of Cuzamalca, the home of the ruler the trappings of war and ornament though it be the rooms filled to the ceiling with gold offered in ransom for the ruler's life

The story is unusual and does not end as the reader might wish perhaps but it is interesting Two beautiful women fight a duel instead of the customary male and the man who might save the king does not arrive in time to stay the hand of the executioner

Molina leaves the beautiful Teresa to go with a band of crusaders to set up a kingdom for King Charles V with a promise of marriage upon his return He and his followers are hailed as god men in the land of Quito where dwelt the Lord of the Sun and Molina is royally entertained in the palace His instantaneous move in the defense of Yma who leads the dance when she is condemned to death for breaking her vows by speaking to a man incurs the displeasure of the ruler The intercession of the monarch's mother results in Yma being given to the stranger for the purpose of learning through her the real meaning of his presence and also to cure the monarch's brother of his love sickness for the dancing girl

Although fond of Yma who is beautiful beyond words Molina's heart still belongs to and yearns for the lovely Teresa

The arrival of a fleet headed by Pizarro brings woe to the inhabitants when the Spaniards proceed to make a captive of the ruler and take the land in the name of their king The scene in the court room when the king is condemned to die is unusually interesting and graphically portrayed and Molina is established in the heart of the reader when he pleads the cause of the people whose worth he knows

Teresa who as a companion the pride has as a stowaway in order to be with her lover is dispatched to the Desert with arrives later than Pizarro and was a reality in charge of the expedition in order to save the Inca but they arrive too late and the Inca falls

Later they find an old priest comes to their aid and Yma Molina and Teresa arrive at their home and Pizarro and his men meet the fate one who feels must the final chapters

Modern Gypsies

All ... the true spirit of spring ... has at last become evident and Marion has seen its sign. At least the more fortunate have.

One day this week a yellow van rolled into town driven by a gypsy woman with her husband we suppose ... calmly directing the dreams from the back seat.

Trailing the van was a Ford coupe loaded with more gypsies than a coupe should carry dressed in the bright and fascinating awe inspiring fashion that gypsies alone can offer.

Thrilled at the sight of a gypsy woman there was at the same time a thrill of fear accompanying the thought of the scene read in childhood of bold bad gypsies who ran off with the blond heroine or stole the lonely mothers child.

First Anniversary

Then he was put in jail. It all happened so long ago that all of his brother Rotarians know the story and it is now ready for publication.

Brown was driving in southern Columbus almost to the city limits bound for Chillicothe. Within a few feet of the limit sign a traffic cop halted his progress ordered him to turn his machine around and report to the judge that he had been doing 58 miles an hour.

The executive paid his bond for appearance continued to Chillicothe

The nimble-witted youngster, who's always ready with the right answer, is a well-fed youngster. And most well-nourished children in this community enjoy HOLSUM as a part of their regular diet. Mothers have found that plenty of this good bread helps to keep the little folks in sound health. And, after all, that's when health is most important, for it gives the child a fair start in life.
Everyone likes HOLSUM, both for its fine flavor and for the satisfying nutriment it contains. It's a genuinely wholesome and appetizing food for the whole family.

SCHAFFNER'S SPRING

COR. MAIN AND CHURCH STS. MARION, OHIO

Featuring Finest Furniture Values a

Marion's Largest Furniture Store. Terms To Suit Your Purse!

Something You Should Know—

When buying furniture you should remember that, unless you are very familiar with the furniture business, very few people can understand the actual dollar-and-cents value of such merchandise.

Two suites, or two articles, may LOOK alike, but still one may be worth a great deal more than the other. Material, finish, construction (and particularly INNER construction) account for the difference.

For this reason you should know your STORE! Buy only where you have confidence in the store.

The Schaffner policy is to have only satisfied customers. We could never do the large volume of business we have here if we attempted to fool a single customer. Talk to those who trade here. See what they will tell you.

Braves And Browns Start Slide To Bottom of Standings

BY DAVID J WALSH

NEW YORK May 10—That baseball fortunes can and do change a trifle more rapidly than the average man can change his mind is a belief that needs no further elaboration today after what has happened in the major leagues especially to the St Louis Browns and the Boston Braves since we began our tour last Sunday last The Braves and Browns having shown a list of what is known as early speed were riding hard on the two major league fields five days ago and the last occasion I saw a ball game Identical twin doubleheaders with the Athletics and Yankees as the opponents of the Browns and Braves respectively

But the current week has been a horrible one for both outfits of great promise Sunday when they were leading their rivals with 11 victories and five defeats for a percentage of 750 the Browns met their arch rival the Athletics and Yankee Stadium at Jersey City and have lived to regret it For games of the Philadelphia series were rained out the first result in a shutout by Lefty Willoughby who beat Gray the ace of Hawley's staff Yesterday, the Yankees also took Gray to the woodshed to make it three straight over the Browns A young Brooklyn another good one has been knocked off in the opener

In consequence the Browns have dropped in the percentage table a matter of 14 points in five days and are in third place behind the Yankees who found their batting in the west to win six straight and the Athletics who are enjoying a prosperous trip The Browns as a matter of fact would have fallen into a virtual tie for fourth place yesterday if the Tigers hadn't lost to Washington

Boston Braves won more ball games during the week than did the Browns which wasn't difficult but lost more points in the percentage table still to be even Not it merely happened that they had more to do They were away out in front on Sunday, having beaten the Pirates in the first game of the week to run up to Sunday Since then Pirates took two straight from the Cardinals moved up to win two out of three

All in all this looks like the blow off The Braves didn't belong where they were and baseball has a very definite way of putting its upstarts in their place That this place is absolutely on the bottom is yet to be proved however The Braves are in the scrapping and they never have ruled anybody off for that Besides they have the doubtful comfort the goes with the realization that they have done no worse so far on the east west series than have the Giants As a matter of fact, they couldn't

LEE ST. BEST IN SECOND LOOP

STAR WRITER PICKS PRESBYTERIANS TO OUTRUN BRETHREN

Recreation Ball League Will Open in Marion Monday

BY BOB ELLIOTT
Sports Staff The Star

THEY tell us that it's not the best policy to try to pick the winners before the race is run but we're only human and as you know the human tendency is to brag to your best pal Boy I Sure Did That One Right The trouble with us is that we have to tell the whole world about our choice but after studying the prospects in the four recreational baseball leagues to operate this summer in Marion we feel that we should be able to tell you how each team is going to finish without missing over eight positions

Taking the Second Sunday school league first simply because it will open the baseball season here Monday night there appears to be about three or four teams that should be closely bunched at the end of the race with about two more acting as the necessary dark horses Before the start of the season only two outfits seem relegated to the second division these being First Reformed and Forest Lawn These two teams finished low in last years race and according to their entry list this year show little promise of causing the big four any excessive trouble

Had Tough Luck

Our pick for the championship of this loop is the Lee Street Presbyterian nine This team had plenty of tough luck last year when it finished second only to the Epworth Juniors who advanced to the Senior league this year The west end Presbyterians defeated the Epworth team twice during the season but lost the championship when it was discovered that they had played an ineligible man during one of the games with the Epworth team This gave them a loss where a victory had originally been and consequently lost them the loop leadership by about one-half a game

On paper it looks as if the United brethren team should furnish the greatest opposition to the champion ship aspirations of the Lee Streeters Backers of the U B team have stated to no uncertain terms that they are all set for a championship year this summer

Possibly the only place that the U B team may manage to beat out Lee Street is in the pitching department Charlie Burke who hurled some good ball for Lee Street last season will be back once more However it is a well-known fact but that for some very sensational support Mr Burke would not have come close to registering the number of wins that he did last season The Lee Street

CHICAGO CUBS AND GIANTS WILL RENEW OLD RIVALRY TODAY

Bruins Favored To Take Series, Bucs Defeat McGrawmen

BITTER rivalry of the diamond will be renewed in New York today when the Chicago Cubs and New York Giants pre season favorites for the national league championship clash for the first time this year The county born in 1908 because of the Merkle boner and the subsequent play off for the league championship has loomed anew and memories of the historic duels between Christy Mathewson and Mordecai Brown are recalled as the teams begin their three game series in the shadow of Coogan's bluff

The faltering Giants generally strong finishers have been losing game after game in the innings while the Cubs a pure good team last year have lost only one game on their current eastern trip The Bruins swamped Brooklyn again yesterday 11 to 2 sweeping the series The Robins are now back in the cellar

Paul Sheely former White Sox first sacker who hasn't been hitting his weight in soap bubbles knocked in all of Pittsburgh's runs as the Bues nosed out the Giants 4 to 3 Sheely's homer with two on in the eighth enabled Burleigh Grimes to beat his former mates for the sixth straight time since McGraw let him go Pittsburgh won two games of the three game series

With Alexander on the mound the Cardinals trounced the slipping Braves 7 to 1 and grabbed the series by two games to one Ford's hitting featured Cincinnati's 7 to 5 win over the Phillies

Murderers row meets another band of sluggers today when the Yankees open against Detroit The Tigers had won six straight before being stopped by Washington yesterday 6 to 1 Ad Luque underhand twirler from Minneapolis was the winning pitcher

The Reds stretched their winning spurt to seven games by downing the Browns 7 to 1 Henry Johnson chalking up his first victory of the season Cuyler's homer with two on in the sixth practically ruined Sam Gray

Cardenas 15 hits the Athletics submerged the White Sox 9 to 2 Earnshaw pitched for the Mackmen Foxx hit a homer

REDLEGS OUT OF CELLAR; DEFEAT PHILADELPHIA 7-5

Indians Made Four Errors, but Beat Boston, 4-3

BY EARL R MCELROY
Sports Editor The Star

NOT in Ohio team in first place today and the sports writers in the major league cities are calling them our boys again as Cleveland and Cincinnati forget how to lose chalking up victories over Boston and Philadelphia

Up in Cleveland the tribe continued its attempt to treat the other teams like fraternity brothers but the Red Sox needed the glad hand and in spite of the four Indian errors the Ohioans won 4 to 3

At that it did not look so good for the Indians For five rounds the tribesmen were held scoreless before the offerings of Milt Gaston who has been changing his style of offering in recent years having done a stretch with New York St Louis and Washington

Led by Jamieson who ran his out a single in the sixth the Indians tied the score at three-all before the next frame rolled around The score remained tied until the ninth when some clever sacrifice hitting scored Jamieson

The game was exciting but light Hits were handed out for the asking Shaute was touched for 10 while Gaston allowed 11

Cincinnati is a half game out of first place today following its 7 to 5 victory over the Phillies at Philadelphia yesterday Brooklyn is in last place today

The victory of the Redlegs followed a batting streak of the Phillies in the early innings Four runs were obtained off Ash in the first two innings before he was removed in favor of Mike May May was quite effective after the Quaker batting them to two hits and one run The Reds scored in the third fifth sixth and eighth innings

BROTHERS TOGETHER AFTER 76 YEARS

Hamilton Man, 83, Meets Closest Relative, 80, After Long Time

HAMILTON, May 10—Theodore M. McDonald 83 here and his brother Leroy 80 Gillette Ark. are enjoying a reunion the first in 76 years.

They were born near New Richmond O. the mother dying just after Leroy and a twin were born.

The six children were cared for in the home of their aunts for several years until the father remarried.

Leroy had become so attached to the aunt however that he was permitted to remain with her.

Both brothers enlisted in the Civil war. Theodore in the army and Leroy in the navy. After Leroy was discharged because of illness he wandered to Gillette.

In the years that followed each believed the other dead until about a year ago when Leroy came across an item in the National Tribune Grand Army of the Republic publication regarding a lost brother and through inquiry at the pension department learned that Theodore lived here.

Subsequent correspondence led to proper identification and the reunion was arranged.

A celebration is being planned for Sunday when friends will visit and congratulate the aged brothers.

Meanwhile the two are swapping stories of the war and events of the last 60 years.

Cheaper Money Starts Bull Move

SIX PER CENT CALL LOAN RATE RETURNS

"Worst Is Over," Traders Say as They Support Favorites

STOCKS ADVANCE

General Electric Climbs 8 Points, Westinghouse Up Seven

BY W S COUSINS
I N S Financial Editor

NEW YORK May 10—After being held back in the first hour or two by scattered liquidation of industrial stocks the market braced itself for a rally in the sections which have been under selling pressure since the first part of the week When money began to flow into Wall Street in the early afternoon and a six per cent call loan rate returned the bulls rushed into the market to support their favorites confidently announcing that the "worst is over" so far as the money squeeze is concerned

The swift recovery was the cue to the sold out bulls to pick up their favorites while the picking was good many of these bulls have been on the side lines awaiting a breaking up of the jam in the money market the rate of which has deprived of the buying power which would have precipitated the severe reactions which have taken place in recent weeks

General Electric's new eight point jump to 324 started the ball rolling for the bull move to the Westinghouse followed with a record point jump to 104 Radios rails dip to 8% failed to upset the bullish forces particularly when moderate buying demand for this old running issue quickly restored the price to above 101 American Can forged ahead to 146 and Marmon Motors in reflection of the large increase in net earnings in the first quarter of the year advanced four points to the new high price of 103½
